

Introduction

This Licence Agreement sets out the terms on which scientific and academic entities can gain access to and use metocean Data Sets, owned by major oil and gas companies and which are managed through the online "SIMORC service". 'SIMORC' stands for the System of Industry Metocean data for the Offshore and Research Communities.

The SIMORC service has been set up with the support of the European Commission and is represented by the International Association of Oil and Gas Producers, IOGP, acting on behalf of participating member companies. Data Sets in the SIMORC facility are made available by participating OGP member companies. These Data Sets are presented in a standardised format and are documented with common Metadata.

Further information on the SIMORC service can be found in Annex 1 to this agreement.

ANNEX 1

SIMORC - 'System of Industry Metocean data for the Offshore and Research Communities'.

Information on the SIMORC service and its modes of operation.

1. The SIMORC service consists of an index Metadatabase and a Database of actual Metocean data sets of SIMORC participants, that together are accessible through the internet. The index Metadata database is public domain and fully open for internet users. It features a geographic-alphanumeric user interface to locate interesting data sets easily. The Metadata index provides sufficient information to allow the user to assess the relevance of the data sets and possible related study reports to its particular interest.
2. The user interface contains an ordering facility, to which registered users of research and academic institutes, that have signed a User Licence Agreement with the SIMORC service, can log-in and by which they can submit requests for downloading and using selected data sets for research and educational purposes. Each request should contain a motivation why the user wants to use the data sets. All requests are registered in the SIMORC transaction register, that is monitored by the SIMORC operator and open for browsing by SIMORC participants.
3. The Database stores and contains Metocean data sets that have undergone quality control and conversion to unified formats, resulting in consistent and high quality, harmonised data sets. Sufficient documentation is compiled and stored alongside the data sets of SIMORC participants to accompany each data series so as to ensure that the data are adequately qualified and may therefore be used with confidence by a secondary user. Such documentation might cover instrument and mooring details, data sampling/processing and a report on data quality.
4. Data sets in the SIMORC database are and remain the property of SIMORC participants, who qualify data sets in the SIMORC database as "restricted" or "non-restricted" data sets.
 - a. In case of "non-restricted" data sets the registered user gets access to the data sets for downloading without further communication with the SIMORC participant, that is listed as owner of the data sets, after submitting its request, including motivation. For downloading a uniq URL is communicated to the registered user. This URL is de-activated after successful downloading. All downloads are registered in the SIMORC transaction register, that is monitored by the SIMORC operator and also open for browsing by SIMORC participants. The transactions will be evaluated on a regular basis to verify that an inappropriate number of downloads or excessive volumes of data downloads are not being made by specific users. Such cases will be reported and discussed with the central contactperson of the Research or Academic institute, holding the User Licence, to seek clarification.

- b. In case of "restricted" data sets the request of the registered user is transferred to the SIMORC participant, that is listed as owner or contact on behalf of multiple owners, for consideration. The SIMORC participant has the right to withhold data sets or to ask for additional information for considering the user request for data sets. If the SIMORC participant agrees, then he will notify the SIMORC operator and for downloading a uniq URL will be communicated to the registered user. This URL will be de-activated after successful downloading. All downloads are registered in the SIMORC transaction register, that is monitored by the SIMORC operator and also open for browsing by SIMORC participants.
5. As part of the User Licence users are requested to provide feedback on the use of the data sets provided by the SIMORC service. Where possible users are requested to provide results or publications as appropriate. In case of use of data sets for a thesis, a digital copy of the resulting thesis is requested for inclusion in the SIMORC service.
6. The use of the data sets is regulated by the User Licence Agreement, that is signed between the SIMORC service and the research or academic institute.
